question of whether or not to keep the City Centre Airport open on the municipal ballot didn't fly with the city.

In order to force a vote on the issue, the petition needed 10 per cent, or 78,244, of Edmontonians to sign. After 20 days of extensive review, city clerk Alayne Sinclair said no more than 73,567 of the 100,063 signatures collected were eligible electors.

"We gave this petition a complete and reasonable review," Sinclair said. "We have declared the petition we received from Edmonton Envision Opportunity Society as a not valid petition." Chuck Allard, chair of Envision

Edmonton, said the reasons given for declaring the petition invalid are based on

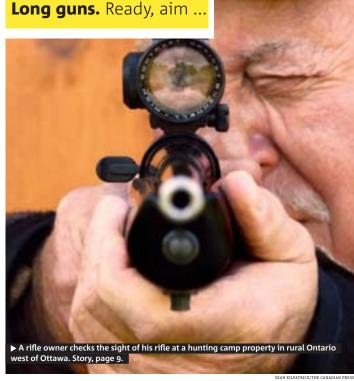

"It is obvious that the mayor does not want to put our question to the public ... He is afraid he will lose his pet project so he has the people at city hall trying to weasel their way out of putting it on a plebiscite."

"unproven technicalities."

In addition to not coming up with enough valid signatures, the city said the petition was not filed within 60 days of council's decision to close the airport, which is required by law.

Council will now decide whether or not to put a question on the ballot that would not be legally binding, but would gauge the opinions of voters.

Cops cleared in fatal shooting

Police who confronted a woman holding what appeared to be a black handgun — but later turned out to be a toy — had no option but to shoot her, says a group that investigates serious police actions in Alberta.

'I've concluded that the police officers involved in this ... shooting acted lawfully and their actions were justified," Clifton Purvis, executive director of the Alberta Serious Incident Response Team, said yesterday. "This finding does not diminish the tragedy of her death and our sympathies go out to her friends and family." Purvis outlined what happened on the afternoon of Jan. 16 at a northeast Edmonton apartment building. Bernadette Auger, 48, was extremely drunk - her blood alcohol level was nearly three times the legal limit — and she was brandishing what looked like a gun at police and others in her building.

The gun was later found to be a toy pistol with the name of a well-known handgun manufacturer and model number on it. An orange plug placed on toy guns when they leave the factory had been removed.

"I've concluded that ... it would have been impossible to identify that the pistol she was holding was a toy as opposed to a real firearm," Purvis said.

○ CHMS most extensive physical health survey ever in Canada ○ Mobile clinic in town until third week of Oct.

Statistics Canada is taking to the streets to survey Canadians on physical health measures.

More than 400 residents of Edmonton and the surrounding municipalities have taken part in health interviews over the past three weeks and are now invited to take a physical test in the Canadian Health Measures Survey's (CHMS) mobile clinic.

"The survey is ... taking direct physical measurements, such as blood pressure, height, weight and physical fitness," said Scott

McLean of Statistics Canada. "The survey is also collecting blood and urine samples to test for markers of chronic and infectious disease, nutritional status and environmental contaminants."

This is the second time CHMS has collected data in the region, having done a round of testing in 2008.

"This survey is different because of the direct measures," said Dr. Gloria Keays, associate medical officer of health for Alberta Health Services.

"It goes beyond just asking people questions about their diet, how they live and what they do."

Leaves fall, but number of speeders doesn't

Even though summer holidays are over and school is back in, some Edmonton drivers continue to ignore the dangers of excessive speeding, police say.

There were a total of 2,312 traffic offences for the September initiative, which compares to 2,318 from June's operation. And during the six Operation 24 Hours held since January, officers have recorded a total of 10,349 speeding-related offences.

"Drivers are still failing to understand that excessive speeding can result in collisions," said Staff Sgt. Bill Horne. "Set aside extra time to get to your destination, don't take chances by speeding."

Survey: Nearly all Canadians fear cyber fraud

● 99% of Canadians expect online fraud, identity theft or 'something bad' to befall them

When it comes to cyber crime, almost all Canadians expect they will be victims but almost half think it's OK to "steal" movies and music online, a survey suggests.

"It is gloomy," said Lynn Hargrove, director of consumer solutions for Symantec Canada, an antivirus software maker which did a global study on cyber crime's human impact.

"It's almost all of us. I think they have more of a sense of online doom," Hargrove said of Canadians.

Despite the feeling of helplessness about cyber crime, almost 50 per cent of Canadians believed it was OK to "steal" music and movies from the Internet, the survey found.

"It's an interesting look at people's online ethics," Hargrove said.

Free does have a price, though.

Hargrove noted that organized crime can put malware on content that is being downloaded for free, leaving people exposed to having their personal information silently stolen.

Other ethical questions found that 11 per cent of those surveyed thought it was OK to impersonate someone online and 12 per cent thought it was OK to browse someone else's files and email.

"There's still work to be done," Hargrove noted about online ethics.

Shell doubles its oilsands output with new mine

○ Jackpine mine project near Fort McMurray has been five years in the building ○ Estimated cost: $2 billion US

Royal Dutch Shell PLC said yesterday a major oilsands project in Canada is now producing 100,000 barrels per day, nearly doubling the company's production from the unconventional source.

With the 100,000 barrels of oil per day equivalent from Jackpine now online, total production by the Shell-operated Athabasca oilsands project has increased to a quarter of a million barrels per day.

Shell's total production was 3.11 million barrels of oil and equivalents per day in the second quarter.

Shell has invested heavily in new production ca-

The company's produc-

"The Jackpine mine is a tremendous addition to our oilsands portfolio," Marvin Odum, Shell upstream Americas director and president of Shell Oil

"Canada's oilsands are an important source of energy in a world with increasing energy needs," Odum added. "Shell is committed to developing this resource responsibly and to pursuing opportunities to reduce the impacts of our oilsands opperations." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Psychic

How smart do you want your smart phone to actually be? Do you want it to read your mind, even a little bit?

Intel Corp.'s research chief, Justin Rattner, says that technology has advanced to the point that an idea of "contextaware computing" that's been around for two decades is becoming more of a reality with the rise of mobile devices.

That could lead to phones that act as psychics in your pocket. Rather than simply amass secrets about you. the devices could be doing things with that information, such as predicting what you might do next and offering suggestions. Tech companies already do this, but only in pieces. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A sweet breakthrough

Worth mentioning

Some sweet science news: Researchers have released a nearly complete map of the DNA of the tree that produces chocolate.

The project to map the cacao genome was funded by candy maker Mars Inc. It finished the sequence just two years into what was supposed to be a fiveyear project.

Mars, the maker of Snickers, M&Ms and other candies, says it hopes the results could someday lead to more robust, higher-yielding and droughtand disease-resistant year, produced primarily by small farms.

But crop losses from pests and diseases costs an estimated $700 million to $800 million to farmers each year.

Unlike corn, wheat and rice, cocoa is often described as an "orphan crop" because it has been the subject of little agricultural research.

With this recent breakthrough, however, scientists say they have moved closer to ensuring the success of the crop, and so, too, the success of small farmers in some of the most climate-vulnera-ble places on the planet. Mars will have spent $10 million on the project by the time it's complete.

Betty White looks back on her golden years

♠ More in demand than ever, the indomitable 88-yearold has no plans to slow down anytime soon

It was Sept. 14, 1985, when NBC introduced Bea Arthur, Betty White, Rue McClanahan and Estelle Getty as The Golden Girls.

A quarter century later, the show is still No. 1 among women who watch the Hallmark Channel, which begins and ends its broadcast day with an episode.

Betty White still sounds giddy when she talks about the show.

More popular than ever following her Saturday Night Live hosting gig in May, her hit show Hot in Cleveland on TV Land and a scene-stealing turn in the upcoming movie You Again, the 88-year-old White recently spoke about her never-ending career.

Is retirement a dirty word for you? Isn't that ridiculous? It is not a dirty word. I am just enjoying what I am doing. If they want me to retire, then stop asking

Did you know when you read the The Golden Girls pilot it was going to be so special? We all kind of did. You get a lot of scripts mailed to you and not too many of them are good, but when this one came along it just hit the spot and they sent it to each of us. They sent it to me with the idea of me doing Blanche. Jay Sandrich, who was our director for most of the Mary most of the Mary

Tyler Moore shows, said if Betty plays another nymphomaniac they are going to think it is Sue Ann Nivens all over again. He said, why don't we switch them?

Once the four of you started working together, did you know right away that you had great chemistry? The first table read was an experience. I had worked with Bea, I had done a couple of guest shots on Maude, I had worked with Rue on Mama's Family. Estelle was a new one to all of us. She came from New York after her hit. We all sat down for the first table read and somebody read a line and then somebody else read a line. You better be ready when you hit it over the net because you are going to get it right back over the net. It was the most exciting ... We all began to look at each other because there wasn't any first reading feeling about it. It was like we had been working together forever. I still get goose bumps thinking about it.

Looking back, what are you most proud of about the show? I send up a prayer of thanks for the writing. We can't do it without the writing. It has to be on the paper. No matter how much credit they try to take, actors can't do it unless it is on that page and boy was it on that page. To get that kind of writing is such a privilege.

Golden Girls really showed older women in a sexual light. Do you think older women are still allowed to be sexy in popular culture? I think we were just trying to tell it like it is. I think older women still have a full life. Maybe the writers don't address it these days, but it doesn't change the fact. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS ifle government criminal investigation and made the couple minor celebrities after they arrived at the White House with a camera crew filming footage for the reality show that aired eight months later.

But they were not on any of the guest lists and did not receive the typical engraved invitation to the exclusive event. That the Salahis were able to get into the White House and so close to the president without being on a guest list prompted changes to security policies, the punishrity policies, the punishment of three Secret Service officers and a criminal investigation that hasn't yet led to charges.

Multiple sclerosis, Salahi says, explains her railthin physique. She rejects suggestions by oth-

Salahi, 44, and a central figure on Bravo's reality show Real Housewives of D.C., was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis when she was 28, according to the book.

Her symptoms include tingling sensations and exhaustion, especially in stressful situations.

Robert Plant Album: Band of Jov Label: Matador

Robert Plant could be making gazillions touring the world and shredding what's left of his aging vocal cords touring the world with Jimmy Page in a semibogus Led Zeppelin reunion.

The fact that he instead opted to make another roots record says everything about the integrity of one of rock's greatest voices. Critics wet themselves heaping praise onto Raising Sand, Plant's 2007 collaboration with Alison Krauss, and it took home a remarkable six Grammys. But, in truth, that CD suffered from the muddy monotone of T. Bone Burnett's heavyhanded production techniques.

Raising Sand was good, but Band of Joy is much better. This time Plant put his trust in alt-country guru Buddy Miller, who delivers a much brighter, truer sound for Plant. Together they mine traditional Honeydripper rock (I'm Falling in Love Again), southern gospel (Satan, Your Kingdom Must Down), Appalachian blues (Central Two O Nine) and Celtic fusion (Richard Thompson's House of Cards). For those who miss Krauss's voice, there are haunting duets with Patti Griffin (Monkey, Silver Rider). His upbeat interpretation of Towne Van Zandt's Harms Swift Way is astonishingly good. The opening track, a cover of Los Lobos' Angel Dance, lies somewhere between Steve Earle's Copperhead Road and Zeppelin's Dazed and Confused.

Collins gets soulful

Phil Collins, who will be 60 in January, has admitted he may be getting too old to rock 'n' roll. The ex-Genesis skinsman now has to tape drumsticks to his hands be-cause his fingers are too weak to hold them properly. Maybe it's no surprise then he has opted to release a new album of mellow soul classics.

He spoke to Guillaume B. Decherf from Metro World News in France.

A year ago, you said you couldn't play the drums anymore. How do you feel today?

My body doesn't work like it used to. I have reached an age when the equipment is starting to wear out! I had an operation last spring and the doctors told me that maybe everything would be back to normal within a year. I'm not sure this will come true and I prepared myself for the prospect of not being to play the drums anymore.

How did you do to play the drums on your latest album?

With the help of technological miracles such as Pro-Tools and my sound engineer Ivan. I would tape the drumsticks to my palms because I have no strength in my fingers. We would do two or three takes to get the groove, then we would start again for the rhythm, and put everything together the best we could

What can I say. Some people will be happy with that and will be disappointed. Let's say I decided to do what I liked. I didn't want to create anything new, I just wanted to focus on titles I love and that I always wanted to sing.

Chanel designer Lagerfeld showcases his photos Exhibit features models, actors, landscapes

He's an uncontested master with a pen and sketchbook, on which he's been rattling off blockbuster ready-to-wear and haute couture collections for decades. But Chanel designer Karl Lagerfeld is also gifted with a camera.

A new Paris exhibition showcases the gamut of Lagerfeld's photography, from his commercial work for Chanel to celebrity portraits for magazines to more experimental landscapes and architectural pieces.

The show — which kicked off Tuesday with a star-studded and Champagne-soaked opening at the Maison Europeene de la Photographie — brings together about 300 of the designer's shots in the largest-ever exhibit of his photographs.

Lagerfeld first took up photography in 1987, and the show, "Parcours de travail," or "Career Path," features sober landscapes as well as portraits soaked in eye-popping colours or printed on glitter-covered paper.

There are, of course, the obligatory fashion photos. Lagerfeld, who designs for Chanel, Italian fashion house Fendi and his own signature line, has long shot the press kits for the labels, churning out photos of models sporting clothes from his collections.

From there, he branched out into ad campaigns for the lines. (He is behind Chanel's latest campaign featuring waifs sporting Chewbacca fakefur skirt suits as they lounge on New York City fire escapes.)

Standouts include "Couture 18eme Vogue," a 1998 series he shot for the fashion magazine, a period scene featuring models in

Celebrating The Misfits

Toni Westbrook-VanCleave was only six at the time, but she still remembers Marilyn Monroe strapping on a toy gun belt and playing cowboys and Indians with her young brother during a break in filming of The Misfits.

Like other residents of the small northern Nevada town of Dayton, she had no clue of the demons that drove Monroe to be consistently late on the set, causing frustrating delays for director John Huston and co-stars Clark Gable and Montgomery Clift.

"She was gorgeous, very sweet, naive," recalled Van-Cleave, who was a $10-a-day extra during a rodeo scene. "She wasn't snobby." In testimony to the public's enduring fascination with Monroe, VanCleave and other locals will gather Saturday and Sunday in Dayton, about 40 miles southeast of Reno, to mark the 50th anniversary of filming for the last complete movie for both Monroe and Gable.

Residents of Dayton, then an agricultural community of about 250, turned out en masse in 1960 to serve as extras or watch the filming, and those who are still around rave about the cast's friendliness and accessibility. The town has since mushroomed into a Reno bedroom community of more than 10,000.

"It was a big deal to have these Hollywood legends in town for a month or so. It's a source of pride for us," said Laura Tennant of the Historical Society of Dayton Valley, the celebration's sponsor. Filmed almost exclusively around Dayton and Reno in July-October 1960, the movie was plagued by almost daily delays caused by Monroe's pill-popping to fall asleep and wake up, said Curtice Taylor, a New York photographer and son of Misfits producer Frank Taylor. ▶ In the event of an emergency, seven people in the world have the power to shut down and reboot the Internet — no joke

It sounds like the plot from Bond movie — an international team of seven key figures who have the power to switch off the Internet.

Except this is real life and Anne-Marie Eklund Löwinder, head of quality and security at domain name foundation .SE, really does have that power over the world wide web.

She is one of seven people around the world entrusted with a secret code key which would allow her to close down and 'reboot' the Internet in the event of a disaster.

She spoke to Metro Sweden's Rickard Lindholm:

You are one of seven people who can "save the Internet" — how?

The international organization called ICANN started the project on the initiative of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

In the U.S. there are two operational centres, one on the East coast and one on the West coast where the code keys are updated four times a year and if the Internet was attacked three of the seven people who have access to the code key need to get to one of the operation centres to restore the system.

Could someone actually sabotage the system?

If three of the seven with code key access couldn't get to the place to restore the system there are another seven back-up people

If nobody manages to get there, if the U.S. for example closed its borders, ICANN can still drill open the safes and restore the system.

So, they've got it covered from all angles.

What would happen if the system wasn't updated for some reason?

Eventually the screens would go black, the code keys must be updated.

What does DNSSEC

DNS is a data base that translates domain names to IP addresses and that has worked fine for more than 20 years, but a couple of years ago a new way to attack this system pretty easily and quickly was discovered.

An attacked domain name can give you information from another source than is displayed.

With DNSSEC all information is authorized and it is certified that all information comes from the right source.

Bono bridges partisan gap

Campaign fights poverty, AIDS

A bipartisan group of senior political hands is sup-porting an effort backed by U2 rocker Bono to talk with candidates about global AIDS and poverty. Former Clinton White House chief of staff John Podesta and former Republican Sens. Norm Coleman and Rick Santorum signed onto the One Vote 2010 campaign. Former White House press secretaries Mike McCurry and Dana Perino also are advising the issue advocacy push.

"This is not only the right thing to do in a humanitarian sense, it is also important to our own national security and future growth markets for American investment," said Coleman, a former Republican senator. "One Vote 2010 is key to helping voters and candidates understand how American leadership in these areas is not partisan and must be maintained.'

The Washington-based campaign is working with and volunteers in New Hampshire, Illinois, Ohio, Florida and Indiana - all states with open Senate races.

The campaign, with Bono as its champion, worked in 2008 to talk with presidential candidates and elicit pledges they would work to fight global AIDS and poverty. The campaign says it had more than 1,000 one-onone contacts.

Sexual harassment settled

Casey Affleck has settled out of court with two women who filed sexual harassment suits against him, according to the Hollywood Reporter.

The women had alleged Affleck behaved innappropriately and created a hos-tile work environment during production of his documentary film, I'm Still Here Phoenix.

Both women will get credit for their work on the film.

◆ A look at some of the trends from New York Fashion Week ◆ Chiffon and '70s-inspired designs appear on catwalk, along with classic looks and sophisticated cuts

1 MARK BADGLEY AND JAMES MISCHKA

Review: The real inspiration for the collection that debuted at the Lincoln Center tents was the 1987 movie White Mischief starring Greta Scacchi, about a 1940s-era affluent woman visiting Kenya and finding romance and adventure. They delivered that with a pool-print chiffon top and a long, white georgette skirt dotted with white petals, a strapless sand-and-ivory organza gown with more petals and silver beads arranged like fans, and a romantic roseand-silver gown that looked like a satin slip and a penoir

2 DKNY

Review: The DKNY woman breezed onto the runway wrapped in the brand's new heritage-print scarf. The spring collection offered for 2011borrowed from many classic wardrobe staples, including shirtdresses, ruffled blouses and trenchcoats. Karan's trim blazers and tapered trousers that she hoped would straddle precision and effortlessness, would work with anything.

3 MAX AZRIA

Review: Max Azria reminded the New York Fashion Week insiders — and hopefully some shoppers, too — that skin isn't always the key to sexiness. The spring 2011 clothes Azria previewed had a sensuality and sophistication that largely came from the ease of the silhouettes. So many of the dresses grazed the body and had such delicate straps that it was almost as if the models wrapped themselves in geor gette or crepe sheets and were merely holding it all together with their fingertips.

4 NICOLE MILLER

Review: Miller went for an elegant layered look in her spring 2011 collection, with models walking the catwalk in thin fabrics in a subdued palette ranging from ivory to grey to black. An ivory jacket was worn over a long khaki silk georgette blouse and a satin chiffon dress. A pair of black shorts were cut just above the knee, giving them a very city chic look. A chiffon dress had a prism print on it, while a jacket had cutout shoulders revealing the skin.

5 REBECCA TAYLOR

Review: Rebecca Taylor's head was in the '70s with mirror accents and pleated floral prints. A little bit Jerry Hall, a little bit Ali MacGraw, Taylor punched up some of her highrise elastic waists with tulip and pom pom designs and knife pleats, sticking mostly to neutral shades of grey, blush, sand and taupe. A canwas trench offered a splash of bright orange, along with a chiffon dot print in camisoles and midi-skirts in lively cherry.

Getting past 'the fashion face'

Much-photographed fashion consultant and front row regular Yasmin Sewell is a pro at navigating the competitive fashionistas, insane schedules and traffic jams that make up the four fashion weeks.

THE INTENSITY

Fashion week is hectic from start to finish. I start each morning by analyzing the show schedule, which is usually epic. Next, I cram in my appointments. The front row is especially intense. How you feel depends on your state of mind. Sometimes you're comfortable in your own skin. But if you're not feeling your best, it can be difficult. You're in a confined space where you know everyone and everyone is essentially a competitor. I switch off and observe. I focus on why I'm there rather than on my-

THE FASHION FACE

"I find it hard to hide it when I'm impressed or not impressed with the clothing. If I care about the designer, I just want to jump up and down. But I have to restrain myself. Everyone else has their 'fashion face' on. They show no emotion so as not to give away what they're thinking. "

THE RANKINGS

"Of the four Fashion Weeks, London is my number one. I have an emotional attachment there. Then it's New York. I love the city and although it's not always the best fashion, it's fun and energizing. Third up is Milan as the food is amazing. Everything is so easy there; you can get a taxi in two minutes. Paris is beautiful and it's where all the fashion happens but it's the final city. By then, I'm tired and as much. Paris is also a bit of a disaster because there always seems to be a taxi strike or something falling apart. They should hire a manager or a logistics guy just for Fashion Week."

The always-stylish Yasmin Sewell is a favorite of the fashion paparazzi.

THE PAPARAZZI

"I'm not very comfortable in front of the camera so I just laugh at it and get the nervous giggles. Maybe I should try to work a cool

THE MAINTENANCE

'I'm hopeless with makeup but Î do moisturize to give my skin a healthy, dewy look. I eat well and that keeps my skin glowing. I'm more about how I feel in my body than makeup. In Paris I have a masseuse on speed dial. Meditation is key in keeping me going so I try to do it twice a day. It completely balances you and re-lieves stress from the body."

WHEN IT'S ALL WORTHWHILE

"One of my best front row experiences was Alexander McQueen's first New York show in 1999. There was a horrible snow storm and the whole city practically shut down. The storm was no match for McOueen and he still went ahead with the show. He got us all there by limousine.

- She's one of the industry's most known and photographed fashion consultants and has worked with brands such as Acne, Rick Owens and the iconic Enalish department store Liberty of London.

Vera Wang courting Kill Bill

Vera Wang typically specializes in artful, romantic styles, which might give one pause to the reference in her newest collection to Quentin Tarantino's violent Kill Bill.

But Wang, in her expla-nation to editors, stylists and retailers in the audience of her New York Fashion Week show, said it was "fusion of East meets West, with a mixture of boyish urban sophistication and romantic otherworldly sensuality.'

Of course, Wang's dress-es were the best offering on the runway, including a red silk-tulle gown with a high neck and hand-ruched draping over a bustier, and a grey jersey dress with twisted pleats and a sheer organza back drape.

In recent years, Wang's catwalk has become a bit of a petri dish with the designer not afraid to take risks for big payoffs. It makes for a more directional and influential collection

touch to kid decor

Betsy Burnham loves designing bedrooms for young children. But be-fore she can begin, she sometimes has to steer clients away from painfully cute design ideas.

"I don't like cutesy things — the murals, the Disney things," says Burnham, an interior designer based in Los Angeles.

"Why give them a really babyish room, when it's so expensive to change everything" as the kids grow older?

Many parents feel obligated to stick with colours and imagery commonly associated with little kids. "But when you do that," designer Brian Patrick Flynn, founder of decordemon.com, "you create a powder keg, because then you have to redecorate when they get bigger."

How do you create a space that is kid-friendly, but will also grow with your child and mesh with the rest of your home?

Flynn, Burnham and HGTV's latest Design Star winner, Emily Henderson, share their advice:

BREAK THE RULES

Forget the typical pas-tels and primary colours. Flynn loves vibrant oranges and greens for kids' bedrooms: "They're high energy, but totally gender-

White and brown are also a great combination, he says, because you can accessorize them with a range of other colours as the child's taste changes.

SKIP THE KIDDIE FURNI-

Burnham says a dresser with a changing pad on top can be a functional and stylish alternative to a traditional changing table.

And rather than buying a prefab kids' table and chairs set, Henderson recommends hunting at flea school chairs and desks.

No need to buy a toddler bed: Your child doesn't need one.

"If you invest in a couple of really nice twin beds, or just one twin bed," Burnham says, you can probably turn that bed into a daybed once the child moves on to a full- or queen-size bed."

KEEP THE CHARACTERS IN THE TOYBOX

"Buy them a Buzz Lightyear toy," says Burnham, "but don't put Buzz Lightyear all over the walls."

Many kids' rooms these days look like advertisements for popular li-censed characters. Nothing dates a room more than focusing it on one character - within a few years, your child will be into something new and you'll be stuck with the redecorating bill.

Will Stamps help Esks get traction?

Star slotback set to return for game against Montreal on Sunday

Six weeks after star slotback Fred Stamps took a debilitating shot in the shoulder, he's back and ready to give the anemic Edmonton Eskimos' offence a shot in the arm.

The 29-year-old Louisiana-born slotback was practising in pads yesterday and is expected to play Sunday against the 7-3 Montreal Alouettes (TSN, 2 p.m. MT).

"I feel rusty but anxious to get out there and play," said Stamps.

"It (the right shoulder) is still a little weak, but my strength is coming back. I can get it over my head. It's just a little sore.

"It's tough the last six

"It's tough the last six weeks sitting and watching my team on the sideline."

It's been a season to forget for the Eskimos, who are 2-8, in last place in the CFL, and in danger of missing the playoffs for the third time in five seasons.

The Eskimos are averaging just 18.7 points per game and have scored just 14 TDS and 183 first downs in 10 games — all worst in the CFL.

The team already has the booby prize locked up with a minus-19 rating in the giveaway/takeaway category. (The next worst team is Toronto at minus-4.)

Head coach Richie Hall

Fred Stamps has 38 catches for 609 yards. He was the CFL's second-leading receiver at the time, but is now 10th.

said everything changes with Stamps back in the lineup.

"He runs all the routes and he commands attention. That opens up everything else for other people," said Hall.

"With him and (Kelly) Campbell you've got two vertical pushes (up the field), and then you've got (Marko) Mitchell. He has the ability to go up over the top."

Stamps, in his fourth year with Edmonton, went down with a dislocated right shoulder against Toronto on Aug. 6.

Help was also on the way yesterday on the defensive side of the ball.

Defensive end Greg Peach worked out and is expected to play against Montreal, the first action the 23-year-old has seen since he ripped ligaments in his left ankle in the season opener against B.C.

The plan is to rotate him in with Ken Pettway and Kai Ellis.

The Baltimore Orioles withstood Jose Bautista's major league-leading 47th home run and ruined the debut of right-hander Kyle Drabek with a 3-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays yesterday night.

Bautista's drive tied the Toronto club record set in 1987 by George Bell. It was his seventh of the season versus the Orioles, the most against any team, and second off O's pitcher Brad Bergesen (7-10).

Toronto has hit at least

Drabek (0-1), the Eastern League pitcher of the year, gave up three runs and nine hits in six innings in his major league debut. He struck out five and walked three.

His father was in attendance. Doug Drabek made his debut against the Orioles for the New York Yankees in June 1986.

Today's horoscope

T Aries March 21-April 20

There will be a change of emphasis in your affairs over the next few days. Work and wellbeing issues may be important to you now but relationships will soon replace them.

Taurus April 21-May 21 Get your head out of the clouds and start thinking along more practical lines. No matter how many things have come easy to you of late you will soon have to work harder for your rewards.

II Gemini May 22-June 21 You have to admit that you could and should have done more to help someone in need, but there is no point making your self feel bad. It is what you do next that matters. Do something that makes a difference.

G Cancer June 22-July 22 No matter what challenges you face you will handle them with ease - all you have to do is stay calm and refuse to let your imagination run away that you don't have much room to manoeuvre at the moment but that may not be such a bad thing. The planets are forcing you in a particular direction for a very good reason it's the best direction for

M Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22

Look closely at your life and you will discover that a route you thought had been closed for good is in fact still open to you. It's the route you are destined to take.

→ Sagittarius

Nov. 23-Dec. 21 You will see through someone's attempts to mislead you and, not surprisingly, you will make a big noise about it. Quite right too. It would be nice if everyone was as honest as you.

り Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20

It's time to get serious about something you did not want to get serious about in the past. There may be more interesting things you would like to be doing but this is the one thing that really matters.

Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18

Try to be more tolerant of those who see things from a different perspective. Yes, of course, you are right and they are wrong but you cannot force them to see that.

H Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

Make an extra special effort to stay on good terms with people today. Even if some of them may drive you up the wall with their annoying ways. SALLY BROMPTON
